

ABSTRACT

A simplified user interface is provided for transferring a captured image. Several steps requiring multiple user inputs have been simplified to occur in response to a single user input. Among other steps, the separate step of selecting the communication mode of the device prior to selection to transmit an image has been eliminated. Additionally, the 5 separate steps requiring two user interactions of connecting to the device and transmitting to the device have been simplified into a single step.